Description

McAfee Internet Security this program is distinguished by its comprehensive nature, offering protection against spyware (antimalware); protection against "phishing," one of the most dangerous and insidious phenomena currently encountered on the Internet; as well as protection against unsolicited mail. It features a precise and straightforward interface that provides quick access to all functions.

McAfee Internet Security is an antivirus that provides device protection against all malicious threats emanating from the Internet. This is especially pertinent given the increasing use of the Internet by children and the growing complexity of threats emerging online. It boasts an excellent firewall, thereby preventing any type of internet pirate from disguising themselves to harm the computer. This license has the advantage of being usable on 10 computers, but it is valid for one year. Delivery is carried out via email, and it does not include an installation disk. It can be used to migrate from the free edition to the full edition.
